Student mobility

Motion for a resolution

tabled by Mr Christian BARILARO and other members of the Assembly

This motion has not been discussed in the Assembly and commits only those who have signed it

Mobility of young people, including students, is one of the core goals of the Bologna Process and is a vital contribution to intercultural understanding. Intercultural skills become ever more important in the globalised economies and multicultural societies of Europe. Living in another country for some time, intercultural exchanges and training, as well as participation in international youth activities put young people in a position where they can reflect on their cultural background and come to a proper appreciation of the diversity of Europe, while learning to co-operate with people of different cultural backgrounds and improving language skills.

The Assembly should examine the measures to promote mobility and exchanges of students, including measures to further reduce administrative barriers to international mobility, such as those which obstruct the granting of visas, of social security coverage and of residence/work permits. Member States could provide proper recognition of qualifications acquired abroad upon return following a mobility scheme. Finally, student mobility can be increased through the provision of adequate funding and access to such funding through mobility schemes at European level.
