Changes in the political structure of Europe necessary to achieve a greater unity between the Members of the Council of Europe and to bring about effective cooperation in the various fields specified in Article 1 of the Statute

Report

Committee on Political Affairs and Democracy

Rapporteur: Ms Margaretha Albertina Maria KLOMPE, Netherlands

A. Explanatory Memorandum

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1.

1. On August 28th last (Resolution n° 124) the Assembly instructed the Committee on General Affairs :

" To submit to the next Meeting of the Assembly a plan for the reform of the Statute of the Council of Europe relating particularly to the suppression of the right of veto of the Committee of Ministers ;

To define the kind of European authority which might be endowed with limited functions but real powers. "

2. The Committee has been greatly assisted in its work by the important contribution represented by the reports which MM. Mackay, Cappi and Guy Mollet were so good as to communicate to it in the period between Sessions and when it began its work.

The Committee has held eight meetings, during which some of the essential problems of European policy have been boldly tackled with the result that precise and important votes have been taken — votes which are perhaps more important than the actual texts which have emerged from them.

1.2. Opening of proceedings.

3. The Committee first considered the definition of a European Authority for which it had been asked; this definition was to condition the whole of its Report.

With the natural purpose of clarifying the problem, a preliminary question was stated at the outset, namely whether the Committee should ask for the immediate setting up of a complete federation between those Member States of the Council of Europe which would be prepared to bind themselves by a Federal Pact, in order to constitute " the basic Federal State " in Europe?

Eleven Members of the Committee declared in favour of an affirmative reply, ten voted against and there were four abstentions.

4. It is important that the conditions under which this vote was taken should be clearly understood. Some of the Members who voted in favour of a Federation which would include only some of the Member States of the Council of Europe expressly stated that they themselves were not in favour of their own country joining such a Federation, but that they were simply anxious to do nothing to hamper the efforts of those who were prepared to bind themselves by a Federal Pact.

On the other hand, some Representatives abstained, although they personally favoured the idea, because they thought the proposal to set up such a Federation, at the present moment, had no chance of being accepted by their own Parliaments.

It was suggested that action should be taken on this vote. However, in view of the conditions of the vote, it did not seem that a discussion on this basis would be likely to lead to any positive result. The Committee therefore continued its work on the basis of the Preliminary Reports submitted to it (see Paragraph 2).

5. Your Committee next considered a proposal from Mr. Mackay, which had also been distributed in the Assembly, for 'the creation of a European Political Authority, based on the Council of Europe. The Committee appreciated the value of Mr. Mackay's work (his conclusions are given in the Appendix to this Report), but noted that, on the author's own admission, it was only after " five or ten years " that the Council of Europe would be able to obtain real powers on certain questions.

The Committee therefore considered that, to fulfil its mandate, it should base its action, for immediate purposes, on -Recommendations Nos 121 and 123 which had been adopted on 28th August 1950 and which called for the creation of Specialised authorities. Some of the members felt that it was particularly necessary to decide which of the specialised authorities it was desirable to establish as early as possible.

1.2.1. A general policy.

6. Finally the Committee pointed out that the Recommendations already adopted by the Assembly, both on the specialised authorities and on the amendment of the Statute, form part of one and the same general policy.

It is expressly provided that the specialised Authorities must be created within the framework of the Council of Europe and it would be the task of the Council of Europe to maintain the essential co-operation between the States which accepted those specialised authorities and other European States, and thus to guarantee the possibility of progress toward the union of Europe as a whole.

7. It was from this standpoint, which was brought out during the general debate, that your Committee examined in turn the specialised authorities, and the reform of the Statute. Its conclusions are, I believe, in harmony with the policy pursued so far—too much so, perhaps, for the liking of some of its Members.

1.2.2. European Security

8. The Committee on General Affairs also continued its study of the political problems of European defence. These problems are referred to in more general terms in the Draft Recommendation on Specialised Authorities (Paragraph 12 below). They were also the subject of a second Debate 'based on a special Report by Mr. Duncan Sandys, and dealing chiefly with the progress of European defence since August last.

9. The texts adopted constitute the second part of this Report. The Committee saw fit to entrust its Rapporteur with the responsibility of drafting the present " Explanatory memorandum " and submitting it in its name. This document has carefully endeavoured to take into account, so far as possible, the different comments made during the discussions and to present the few " factual data " which may be found useful 'for the study of the Resolutions.

10. Lastly I trust that I may be allowed at the beginning of this Report to tell the Chairman, M. Bidault, how great is the debt of gratitude owed to him by the Committee for the good-humoured authority with which he has directed its discussions, and how grateful I myself am to him for his useful advice—and "to tell the Vice-Chairman, M. Guy Mollet, whom I have the crushing responsibility of succeeding in his functions as Rapporteur, how 'his earlier investigations have served me as models which I dare not hope to have followed very successfully—and finally to express to all my colleagues my warmest thanks for the kindness which they have shown me, and for having made the task of their new Rapporteur such an easy and pleasant one.

1.2.2.1. I - The Specialised Authorities

11. After its discussions on the Specialised Authorities the Committee adopted <sup>1</sup>, by 22 votes to 2, with 3 abstentions, the draft Recommendation appearing in the Second Part.

May I now say a few words as to what this text contains and also on what it does not contain, or no longer contains...

Liaison between the Council of Europe and the Specialised Authorities.

12. Recommendations N03 121 and 123 of 28th August 1950 had already emphasized the necessity of a liaison—or even of organic links—to be established between the Authorities and the Council of Europe. The Committee has wished to repeat once more, in very express terms, the indications already contained in those texts (cf. paragraphs (i) to (iv) of its draft Recommendation).

The proposals which it formulates are perfectly explicit, and do not seem to require comment. It should be noted that those in paragraphs (i) and (iv) are directly based, in the first case on the practice followed in the negotiations concerning the Schuman Plan, and in the other case on the Recommendation Nos 132 adopted last August, also concerning the Schuman Plan.

Present realisations.

13. Certain Specialised Authorities are already the subject of negotiations and in that connection the Schuman Plan immediately occurs to one's thoughts. Your Committee have emphasized the great importance which they attach to the early inauguration of the High Authority for coal and steel. The signature of the Treaty which will establish it will certainly be an important date in the history of Europe.

1. This text was voted on paragraph by paragraph ; the results of these successive votes are shown after each paragraph of the Report.

The Assembly has already formulated practical suggestions for the creation of other Authorities (Refugee's Office, Transport, etc.). I certainly cannot fail to mention the plans which are being studied in the domain of agriculture (Pflimlin Plan and Marsholt Plan)—and finally the Pleven Plan, which traces its origin to a recommendation of the Assembly in the sphere of common defence.

Some Members of the Committee have expressed the opinion that international cooperation might, in certain cases, assume the character of Specialised Authorities not of a supra-national nature.

Structure of Specialised Authorities.

14. It has seemed premature to try to give any abstract definition of the rules which might be best suited for the organization of Specialised Authorities (structure, financing, etc.) or for the nature of their liaison with the Council of Europe or with the Member States which might not be associated with it. Moreover, the Recommendation contained in Doc. 123 already provides certain general rules on this subject. Again, in paragraph (iv) of the present Recommendation, it is pointed out that it is very desirable that each Authority should possess, in particular, an inter-parliamentary organ of control.

Finally, adopting once more the procedure that was followed in August, your Committee proposes that we should launch an appeal to the national Parliaments with a view to the expediting of the different measures outlined above.

Explanations of votes.

15. Some members of the Committee have explained that they were voting against the project, or that they would abstain from voting because of the reference made therein to "common defence as in their view such a reference was not authorised by the Statute of the Council of Europe.

One member has said that he would abstain because he considered that the proposal went beyond the mandate given to the Committee in the Resolution N° 124 of 28th August 1950 and had in fact no connection with the definition of a European Authority possessing limited functions but real powers.

Proposal to create a European organization for Foreign Policy.

16. Several members of the Committee, and your Rapporteur herself, would have preferred that the decision on specialised Authorities, the creation of which might be regarded as essential, should have been the subject of a specific proposal.

The Assembly has already opened the way by calling for "the immediate creation of a unified European army, under the authority of a European Minister of Defence who would be subject to democratic European control. »

It was emphasized that the unification of the armed forces of States participating in the Defence Authority might make it desirable to co-ordinate the foreign policy of those States, at least in certain clearly defined sectors.

17. In the latter field there would, of course, be no question of total unification. Just as, if a European Defence Authority were created, it might be admitted that certain States should retain part of their own armed forces at their own disposal, in view of particular circumstances, so in this case it would be desirable to limit the scope of the Authority and to allow the participating countries, if they so desired, entire freedom of action in certain domains (for instance, in regard to relations with overseas countries).

In the light of these observations it was proposed that there should be appointed a "High Commissioner for External Relations" who would receive his general directives from a "body of Ministers for Foreign Affairs", and would be subject to an appropriate form of democratic control.

This proposal was rejected by 13 votes to 8, with 5 abstentions.

18. Certain members who voted against this proposal felt that it went so far towards a true Federal Union that they could only accept it on condition that it was approved by all the Member States of the Council. Other Representatives justified their opposition on the ground that the proposal, in its present form, did not appear to them to be sufficiently precise.

1.2.2.2. II - Reform of the Statute

19. The Committee has studied the draft Reform of the Statute requested by the Assembly, on the lines indicated in paragraph 7 above. It kept in view the two-fold aim of improving the functioning of the Council of Europe and of increasing its efficiency, while respecting the fundamental principles which enable the fifteen Member States to pursue a common action.

As has been mentioned (paragraph 5), Mr. Mackay had submitted an important protocol, which aimed at radically transforming the Statute with a view to conferring legislative and executive powers on the Council of Europe. The Committee, with the exception of two of its members who gave a contrary opinion, was in agreement with the general principles of this protocol, but it was not able to carry out a detailed examination of them. While confining itself to the examination of amendments of more limited scope, it was of opinion that it would be desirable that the Assembly should transmit Mr. Mackay's proposals to the Committee of Senior Officials appointed for the Reform of the Statute, explaining that it accepted their principle but did not commit itself in regard to the form.

The proposals of Mr. Mackay appear in the document appended to the present Report. They are also referred to in the fourth paragraph of the draft Recommendation which the Committee is submitting to the Assembly,

Renewal of earlier Recommendations.

20. It is proposed that the Assembly should renew in particular those of its earlier Recommendations which referred to the Reform of the Statute. In the present case, this would mean the Recommendations contained in Doc. 74, § 7 (Free settlement of the Orders of the Day of the Assembly, Conditions of Admission of New Members), § 8, ii (Organisation of Sessions), § 5, ii (Granting of the power of decision to the Committee of Ministers) and Doc. 123 (Specialised Authorities).

Scope, of the Council of Europe.

21. The Assembly has already given its opinion that the Council of Europe might hold debates " on political problems of a non-military character linked with the necessity of ensuring the security of Europe " and has held important debates on this subject.

Various steps undertaken by the Committee of Ministers, in addition to the recent Peace Declaration which it submitted to the Assembly, have in fact confirmed this point of view, which your Committee now proposes to make official by the following amendments to the Statute.

In Article 1 (b), the words political matters would be added to the list of sectors in which the Council may operate.

At the same time Article 1 (d) would be deleted. (Matters relating to National Defence do not fall within the scope of the Council of Europe).

Voting in the Committee of Ministers.

21. The Assembly had already expressly requested that the right of veto in the Committee of Ministers should be abolished.

It is proposed that Recommendations to Governments be approved by a two-thirds majority of votes cast (and by a majority of Representatives entitled to sit).

In this way, provided that there were a sufficient majority in the Committee of Ministers, it would transmit the Recommendations of the Assembly to Governments, also in the form of Recommendations, and this would leave each State free to take a final decision on each individual Recommendation.

This procedure is very similar to what which has been used with success by the International Labour Organisation. It would also favour the development of specialised Authorities within the framework of the Council of Europe.

Secrecy of discussions in the Committee of Ministers.

23. It is proposed to make Article 21 (b) of the Statute more flexible. This Article lays down that " The Committee shall determine what information shall be published regarding the conclusions and discussions of a meeting held in private. " The amendment would make it possible for the Representatives of the respective Member States to make their own attitude known.

Composition of the Assembly.

24. It is proposed to transform the Recommendation N° 74, § 8 (i) of 18th August 1950, concerning the appointment of Representatives to the Consultative Assembly into a proposal for the amendment of the Statute. The Recommendation provides that Representatives would be appointed, either by their Parliaments or by a procedure, settled by the latter, which would leave open the possibility of appointment by universal suffrage.

The Re-fashioning of European Organisation.

25. It is proposed that the Recommendations already formulated on the liaisons to be established between the Council of Europe and O. E. E. C, as well as with the social and cultural organisms of the Brussels Treaty Powers (Recommendation, Doc. 74, § 1 of 18th August 1950) should be renewed.

At the same time certain practical provisions are suggested which might allow for transitional measures, and would at once facilitate a certain control by the Assembly over the different intergovernmental organisations. This control would constitute a limited but not negligible method of influencing the joint action of the Governments.

Secretaries of State for European Affairs.

26. It is proposed that the Recommendation contained in Doc. 74, § 4, requesting the creation within the Governments of Member States of ministerial posts for European affairs, should be renewed. The Parliaments are invited particularly to emphasize the need of giving effect to this Recommendation.

The Committee of Senior Official for the Reform of the Statute.

27. The Committee of Ministers has decided to entrust to a Committee of Senior Officials the examination of the propositions of the Assembly on the reform of the Statute. Recurring to the proposal of the Standing Committee, your Committee suggests that you should ask that this Committee should include also Representatives of the Assembly. It nevertheless considered that it would be impracticable to request that the Senior Officials and the Representatives should be equal in number.

It will be recalled that the Study Group for European Unity which contributed largely to the drafting of the Statute, made a similar proposal. Several of our colleagues took part in this work.

Comment on Recommendation N° 74, § 5 (i), of 18th August 1950 (Granting of powers of decision to the Committee of Ministers).

28. It has been pointed out that the drafting of a new Article 15, which is implied by the Recommendation contained in Doc. 74, § 5 (ii), of 18th August 1950, raises a number of legal and constitutional difficulties. Accordingly, your Committee asks you submit the matter to the Legal Committee, which would be requested to communicate its own conclusions to the Committee of Senior Officials either directly, or if possible after ratification by the plenary Assembly.

1.2.2.3. III - Declaration on Peace transmitted by the Committee of Ministers

29. The Assembly had requested that a new text of the Declaration on Peace drawn up by the Committee of Ministers at Rome should be prepared.

Your Committee is of the opinion that it sufficed for the Assembly to take note of the Declaration of the Committee of Ministers. The Assembly will remember, in point of fact, that on August 28th last, it adopted a solemn Declaration, which has lost nothing of its topicality.

Accordingly it is proposed that the latter Declaration should be simply renewed.

B. I. Draft recommendation on Specialised Authorities

30. The Committee on General Affairs submits to the Assembly the following recommendations :

" The Assembly,

" Considerin g that its objective of instituting a European political authority comprising all democratic nations cannot but be furthered by the development of Specialised Authorities, provided they remain within the framework of the Council of Europe,

(Approved unanimously, with 2 abstentions.)

" Renew s its former Recommendations, especially the Recommendation contained in Documents 121 and 123 of 28th August 1950, and particularly recommends that the following measures be adopted :

" That during the negotiations on a convention for the establishment of a Specialised Authority, Member States who so wish shall be kept regularly informed of developments ;

" That the Authority shall remain open to accession by all Member States,

" That reports be submitted regularly by the Authority's supervisory organs to the Assembly and the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe, so that the latter may be enabled to make suggestions or Recommendations on the operation of the Authority ;

" That insofar as appears desirable, the Authority should include a parliamentary control organ, the parliamentary members of this body being selected from among the Representatives of the participating countries, members of the Consultative Assembly;

(Approved unanimously, with 2 abstentions.)

" Recommend s that every effort be made to ensure that existing proposals are brought to a successful conclusion—such as the High Authority for Coal and Steel—and to encourage the establishment of other authorities for cultural social, economic (agricultural as well as industrial matters) and for joint defence;

(Approved by 24 votes to 3.)

" Request s the Parliaments of Member States to decide themselves, as speedily as is reasonably possible, on the principle and methods to be employed for the participation of their countries in such of these measures as they are willing to adopt. "

(Approved by 18 votes to 1, with 8 abstentions.)

The Draft Recommendation was approved in its entirety by 22 votes to 2, with 3 abstentions.

C. II. Draft Recommendation on the Reform of the Statute

31. The Committee on General Affairs submits the following Recommendation to the Assembly :

" Th e Assembly,

" Considering that its Resolution N° 124 of 28th August 1950 called for the submission of a plan for the Reform of the Statute, including the suppression of the right of veto within the Committee of Ministers ;

" Considering that the Committee of Ministers, at its Session of 3rd and 4th November 1950 decided to appoint a Committee of Experts to study possible changes in the Statute and in the general working of the Council of Europe,

Questions under Article 21 (a) (i) and (6);

" The Assembly,

" Considering it to be of the greatest importance that it shall be able to follow the work of the chief European or international intergovernmental organisations and to submit suitable Recommendations to the Committee of Ministers concerning the direction of their work;

" Request s the Committee on Legal and Administrative Questions to examine the implications of this Recommendation;

" Request s the President of the Assembly to transmit, if necessary, directly the conclusions of the Committee to the Committee of Experts for the reform of the Council of Europe. "

(Adopted by 20 votes to 1, 1 Representative having abstained.)

34. The Committee on General Affairs submits the following resolution to the Assembly :

"Solemnly renews the Declaration N° 118 it had itself adopted on 28th August 1950. "

Appendix 1 APPENDIX I

Resolution relating to a protocol amending the Statute of the Council of Europe

The Assembly,

(a) Having been asked by the Committee of Ministers in September 1949 to consider any necessary changes in the political structure of Europe to achieve a greater unity between the Members of the Council of Europe and to make an effective European co-operation in the various spheres specified in Article 1 of the Statute;

(b) Having unanimously resolved in September 1949 that the aim and goal of the Council of Europe is the creation of a European authority with limited functions but real powers;

(c) Having resolved in August 1950 that the Committee on General Affairs :

submit to the next meeting of the Assembly a plan for the reform of the Statute of the Council of Europe relating particularly to the suppression of the right of veto of the Committee of Ministers; define the kind of European authority which might be endowed with limited functions but real powers.

(d) Conscious that any definition of such a European authority must be one which provides something more than cooperation at Government level as it exist in Europe at present and something less than a full supranational authority ;

Resolves :

That the definition of such a European authority be as follows :

(i) Functions.

The functions should include those conferred by Articles 1-4 of the Brussels Treaty and by Articles 1-9 of the O.E.E.C. Convention on the councils established by those treaties; and the organisations created under the two treaties should be an integral part of the organisation of the Council of Europe and responsible to it.

(ii) European Authority.

That the European authority should be a Parliament of two houses comprising the Committee of Ministers and the Assembly; that the Committee of Ministers should represent the Governments of the Member States and that its decisions should remain unanimous; that the Governments should retain the final say but that a parliamentary authority should be created. Legislation in the form of a Bill would be introduced in the Assembly, and when it had passed the Assembly it would go for approval to the Committee of Ministers.

(iii) Legislative Powers

The Council of Europe should not be given in advance any executive power to legislate. It should acquire such powers to legislate in respect of its different aims and functions from time to time. Such powers would be conferred on it by individual Bills for each specific matter, when such Bills had passed the Assembly and the Committee of Ministers. The powers which the Council acquires and the way in which those powers are exercised by it will be set forth in legislation approved in both Houses.

(iv) Executive Powers

The Council of Europe should have an executive small in numbers responsible to both Houses to take the place of the present large Standing Committee. Such an executive would meet regularly. It would organize the Agenda of the Assembly and prepare its legislation. It would also control all the administrative organizations of the Council of Europe and create departments such as defence, customs, finance as it may require.

Appendix 2 APPENDIX II

Protocol for the amendment of the Statute of the Council of Europe

The Assembly of the Council of Europe recommends, and has caused its recommendations to be embodied in this Protocol, that the Statute of the Council of Europe be amended so that the aims and functions of the Council of Europe be enlarged to include all the functions and powers of the Councils created by the Brussels Treaty and the Convention for European Economic Co-operation; so that the organizations established under those treaties be transferred to the Council of Europe; so that executive authority and legislative power be vested in the Council of Europe; and so that the Council of Europe be converted into a European political authority with a Parliament of two Houses and for other purposes connected therewith.

2. Each member of the Council of Europe shall nominate a Minister, Secretary or Under-Secretary of State who, without prejudice to the responsibility of the Ministers for Foreign Affairs, should be charged with the supervision of European Affairs.
3. The special task of the holder of this post should be :
to co-ordinate the activities of his Government in the field of European co-operation ;
to ensure the diffusion of decisions or suggestions made by the various organs of the Council of Europe amongst members of Parliament and the public in the participating countries;
to act, in place of the Ministers for Foreign Affairs, as the representatives of the Member State to the Committee of Ministers.
4. ## Part 3 - The Legislative Powers

ARTICLE III

All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in the Council of Europe, which shall consist of the Committee of Ministers and the Legislative Assembly.
