Socialising at schools: for an inclusive and participatory education fostering democratic values

Amendment¹ No. 4

Mr José María SÁNCHEZ GARCÍA, Spain, European Conservatives, Patriots & Affiliates

In the draft resolution, replace paragraph 6.2.6 with the following paragraph:

"foster active participation and participatory governance in schools by involving educators, learners and parents in developing a 'whole-school democratic culture' which is based on a holistic values-driven and community-focused approach, thereby building trust and participation in communities through education. Partnerships with external associations, like family associations and specialists, may provide added value, as stronger alliances between families and schools will prove instrumental in preserving democratic values."

Explanatory note

Parents and families are the first and most important educators of their children and therefore strong partnerships between families and schools are essential.
